

RESOLUTION NO. 10

Enforce the Law of the Land

The United States of America has signed and ratified the following documents: The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the Convention Against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhumane or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, and the International Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Racial Discrimination.

Once signed and ratified, the documents became the law of the land.

We, as an organization, have a duty and responsibility to lead, educate, and make a real difference in the world, as well as our own country.

As a signatory to these documents, the United States is required to submit a report to the United Nations in a timely manner, showing what progress has been made in these areas.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED:

CLUW encourages all chapters to urge all governmental bodies to make regular reports to the United Nations on the progress or non-progress in each of these areas;

CLUW educate our members of the beautiful and powerful words contained in each document, highlighting our rights which will aid in our battle for women's rights.
